RIPAM 11

“The tangible and intangible heritage of Mediterranean cultures: contaminations, stratifications, restorations and valorisation”

Palermo 6 - 7 - 8 november 2025

Palermo and its Heritage reveal an intertwining of different cultures that have shared the same space for centuries, this peculiar character makes it a privileged place to host the Ripam 11 - 2025 conference. Political-economic relations and exchanges of experiences, which also took place in a conflictual way, have sedimented the culture of the city over the centuries, translated into an intense architectural and artistic activity that still characterizes the whole of Sicily today. Think of the so-called «Arab-Norman architecture», recently the subject of a UNESCO recognition, or the «Mediterranean Gothic» that sees Palermo enter into relations with other cities in the Mediterranean, or the teeming presence of a series of ethnic minorities who have defined, within the neighborhoods, their places of worship and their own forms of self-representation. Ripam 11 aims to be a large-scale discussion on the exchanges and contaminations of cultures in the Mediterranean, which can be investigated from an artistic, architectural, archival, regulatory and social point of view, acting as a constructive moment to rethink projects and communities between past and future, in a perspective of verifying the value of multiculturalism. The conference aims to be a moment of reflection on the role that cultural heritage has had and can still have for the Mediterranean community, starting from the added value that every contamination has entailed and continues to entail and weaving the study experiences in an interdisciplinary logic: between restoration project, history of architecture and communication project of cultural heritage, in line with a current interpretation of the complexities of history, progress and stratifications.
